The MD Good Samaritan Law: What is it?

Maryland's Good Samaritan Law protects people assisting in an emergency overdose situation from arrest, as well as prosecution for certain crimes.

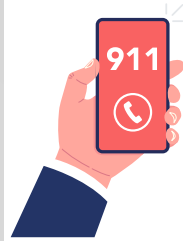

This law is meant to encourage people to...

-Call 911 when someone is experiencing an overdose or medical emergency due to consumption of alcohol/drugs and is in need of help

-Administer naloxone

Important Components of the Law

-Calling 911 in an overdose situation won't affect your parole/probation status

-You cannot be held liable for a good faith attempt to help someone by administering naloxone

-This law also protects the person who received assistance

-This law does NOT protect people who are witnesses of the medical emergency who did not assist

Naloxone

-Acts in 2-5 minutes

-Will NOT reverse overdoses caused by cocaine, alcohol, benzodiazepines, or methamphetamine

-Lasts for about 30-90 minutes

-Harmless if given to someone who does not have opioids in their system

-Blocks the effects of all opioids

Important Components of the Law

The law protects persons from criminal arrest, charge or prosecution for the six misdemeanors listed below where the evidence was obtained solely because of the act of seeking medical assistance:

§ 5-601: Possessing or Administering Controlled & Dangerous Substances
§ 5-619: Drug Paraphernalia
§ 5-620: Controlled Paraphernalia

§ 10-114: Underage Possession of Alcohol
§ 10-116: Obtaining Alcohol for Underage Consumption
§ 10-117: Furnishing for or allowing underage consumption of alcohol

*The Good Samaritan Law does not apply to drug felonies or other crimes not listed above. Additionally, it does not prevent law enforcement from conducting an investigation and gathering evidence.
